got them a match where we could. Lyric Longoria and Analia Campos were both able to get some experience wrestling tough girls. Not so fun now, but will pay off in the future. Our biggest emphasis with these younger girls has been breaking bad habits from middle school. We want them to have a plan and hit actual wrestling moves instead of winging it. We saw a couple girls hit cradles, girls being comfortable in front headlocks, and girls knowing what they're looking for when they step on the mat. All in all, we'll take it, and we're looking forward to seeing what this young group does when they become regulars in the varsity lineup.
